As Assistant General Counsel and Assistant Vice President for Real Estate & Community Development, Mark Brady provides legal advice and practical project management insight for St. Louis County’s commercial, industrial, business district, and community redevelopment initiatives. He has been instrumental in projects including River City Casino, Buzz Westfall Plaza, Bio-Research & Development Growth (BRDG) Park, and the Midwest-China Hub Commission.

With over twenty years experience working in real estate development, Brady has designed strategies for the innovative use of local, state and federal development incentives. Prior to joining the Economic Council, Brady was in private law practice where he focused primarily on real estate development, land use and economic development incentives and regularly appeared before legislative, administrative and judicial bodies.

St. Louis County Economic Council’s Real Estate & Community Development Division creates sustainable communities by identifying and implementing innovative strategies for effective land use and development. Special attention is given to sites that are idle, abandoned, underutilized, or environmentally contaminated. Redevelopment and reinvestment in such areas helps attract new business while enhancing quality of life.

St. Louis County Economic Council serves as the county’s economic development agency, driving growth and prosperity in the most economically important county in Missouri. As the only economic development agency in the state to hold the esteemed Accredited Economic Development Organization from the International Economic Development Council, it provides a broad range of services through its six divisions: business development, business finance, economic development collaborative, real estate and community development, St. Louis Enterprise Centers, and World Trade Center Saint Louis.
