Dennis V. Breite is Vice President of the St. Louis Enterprise Centers. He oversees operations of St. Louis County Economic Council's (SLCEC) four enterprise centers and leads the recruiting efforts for new client companies. He also develops special programs that help ensure successful entrepreneurial growth.

As vice president, Breite is responsible for the overall management of each facility, its managers, and maintenance personnel. He works directly with client companies to develop an array of assistance options targeted to their needs and stage of development. He maintains cooperative alliances with other small business programs and initiatives that collectively assist with the start-up and growth of small businesses to expand economic development within the St. Louis region.

Breite's former work experience includes executive positions at Mallinckrodt, Graybar Electric, and Washington University School of Medicine.

Through the Enterprise Centers, SLCEC provides new and growing businesses with affordable space, support services, access to mentors, and valuable networking opportunities. The St. Louis Enterprise Centers, located in Midtown, South County, West County, and Wellston provide assistance to nearly 60 companies in manufacturing, construction, professional services, software development, information systems, telecommunications, culinary arts, and other fields.

St. Louis County Economic Council serves as the county's economic development agency, driving growth and prosperity in the most economically important county in Missouri. As the only economic development agency in the state to hold the esteemed Accredited Economic Development Organization from the International Economic Development Council, it provides a broad range of services through its six divisions: business development, business finance, economic development collaborative, real estate and community development, St. Louis Enterprise Centers, and World Trade Center Saint Louis.
