

Joyce E. Steiger

Chief Financial Officer

St. Louis County
Economic Council

For nearly 20 years, Joyce Steiger has been the Chief Financial Officer for St. Louis County Economic Council. She oversees the accounting division and is responsible for the Economic Council's annual financial statements, single audit report and operating budget, while ensuring compliance with internal and external financial regulations.

Joyce manages the accounting staff and all financial functions including accounting, budgeting, purchasing payroll, credit, insurance, tax and treasury. She creates and coordinates a variety of financial and statistical reports for decision making and implements employee programs and policies such as staffing, compensation and benefits.

In addition to her accounting expertise, Joyce selects new information technology software and hardware. She also manages the Economic Council's portfolio of properties, which consist of four small business incubators. She provides guidance on maintenance schedules, fixed-asset replacement and general operations of property management.

Throughout Joyce's tenure and because of her adept accounting abilities and detail-minded skills, the Economic Council has maintained strong fiscal budgets and clean audits year after year. Joyce holds a Bachelor of Science in business administration from Old Dominion University and a Public Policy Certificate from The College of William & Mary.

St. Louis County Economic Council serves as the county's economic development agency, driving growth and prosperity in the most economically important county in Missouri. As the only economic development agency in the state to hold the esteemed Accredited Economic Development Organization from the International Economic Development Council, it provides a broad range of services through its six divisions: business development, business finance, economic development collaborative, real estate and community development, St. Louis Enterprise Centers, and World Trade Center Saint Louis.
